

UNWomen:

1.Promoting inclusive Political Participation of Women

Political participation of women has an issue for so many years and international community is still discussing this subject. The reality that women in even the 21st century, continue to be marginalized from political institutions, the male domination in the political sphere has been challenging societies for a long period of time. This is one of the reasons why there are many institutions within the scope of the UN are tackling with this issue. It's possible to pursue the perception and the evaluation of female participation in political sphere via the international provisions regarding this topic.

2.Empowering rural women through the SDGs

Rural women are key agents for achieving the transformational economic, environmental and social changes required for sustainable development. But limited access to credit, health care and education are among the many challenges they face, which are further aggravated by the global food and economic crises and climate change. Empowering them is key not only to the well-being of individuals, families and rural communities, but also to overall economic productivity, given womens large presence in the agricultural workforce worldwide.